Civil Space

A people-centric engagement platform built to help communities and organizations co-design better futures

It's an accessible, online bulletin board and gathering place—a hub for sharing community-driven ideas and collaborating with people on decisions that impact them. Civil Space is designed to educate and provide context to issues, raise engagement levels, and harness the feedback that matters.

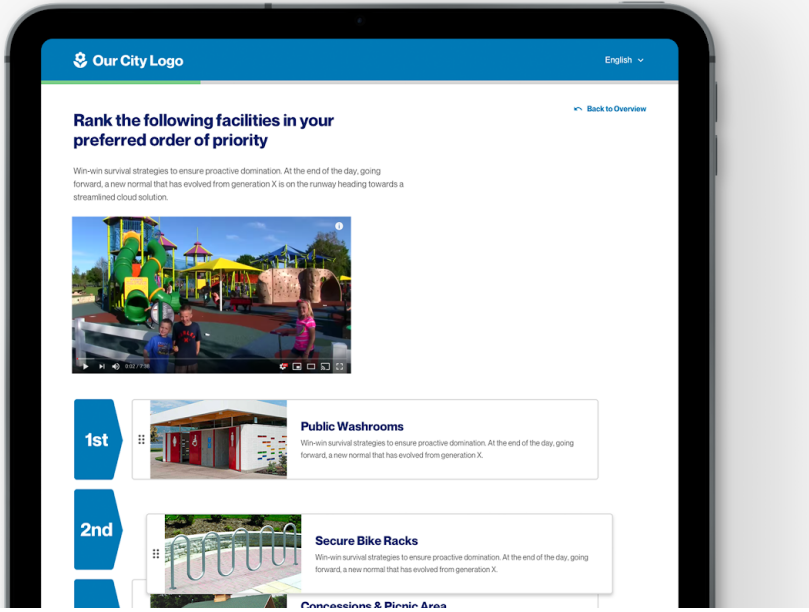

Leveraging an elegant, intuitive user experience, Civil Space takes a clear, collective, and context-minded approach to online engagement. Grounded in the IAP2 spectrum of public participation, Civil Space encourages healthier and more empathetic community conversations, amplifies diverse voices, and creates momentum towards consensus.

Civil Space has an explicit focus on improving the quality and output of conversations. Our commenting and threaded conversation capabilities include toxicity nudging, which identifies potentially inflammatory comments and encourages contributors to re-phrase, ensuring that their voice is heard and adds constructively to the conversation. This not only reduces moderation efforts, but helps build trust between constituents and their organizations.

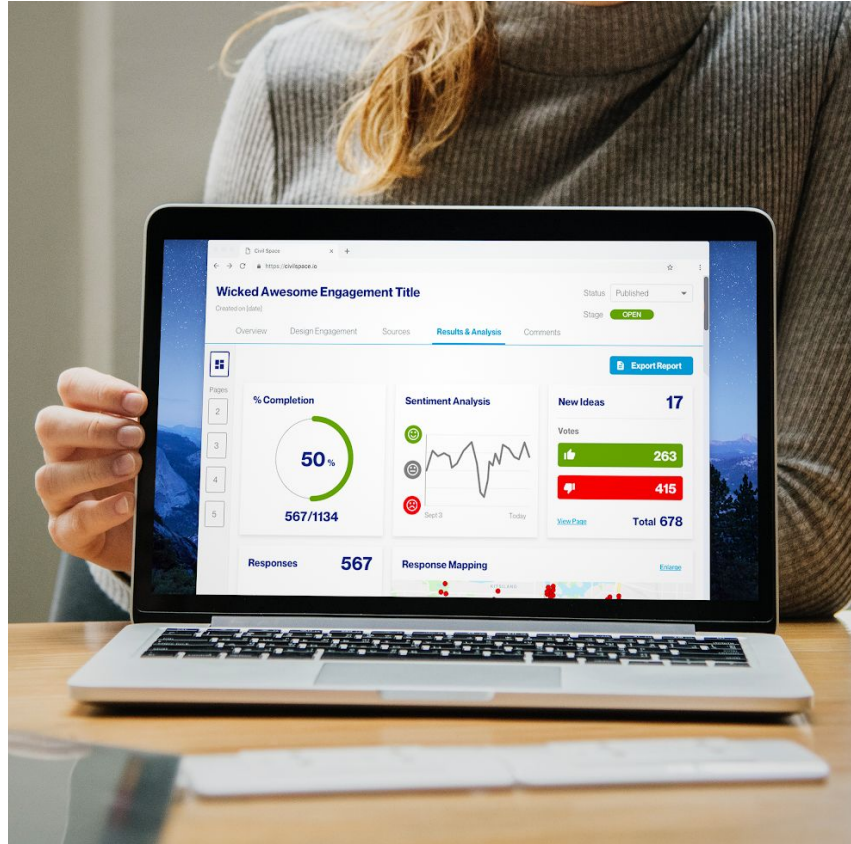

Increase the amount of high-quality feedback you receive

Set up your engagements to include just enough context to ensure your community is informed, but not overwhelmed

Unlock insights with ease; get to meaning faster

Built-in cross tabbing and filtering for quantitative responses and open-ended text analysis helps get you from engagement completion to results understood in record time

Help your audiences understand the whole process

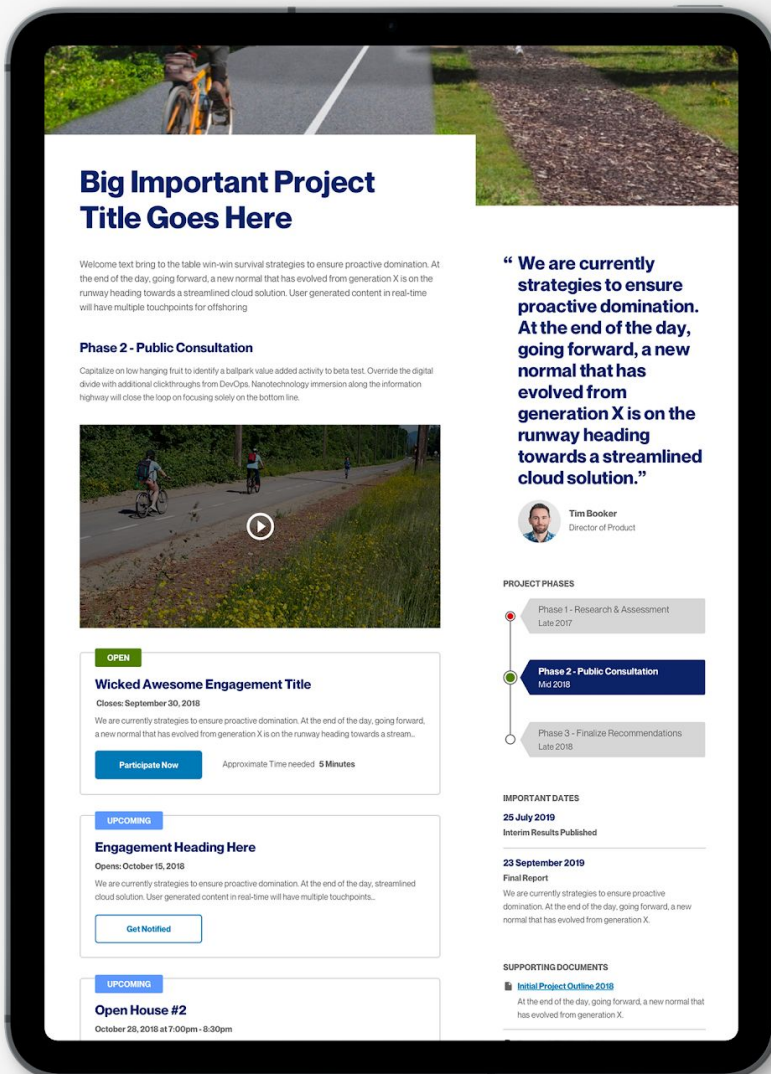

Project hub pages can be rapidly built to communicate the purpose, stages, important contacts, files, media, and of course: open engagements related to your engagement

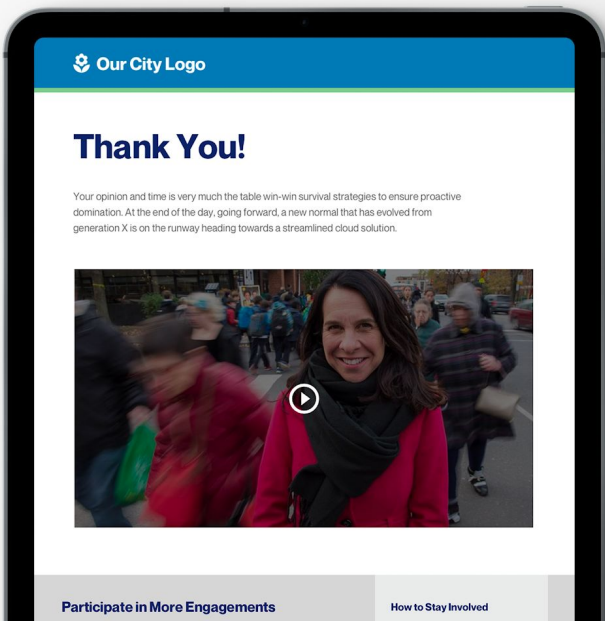

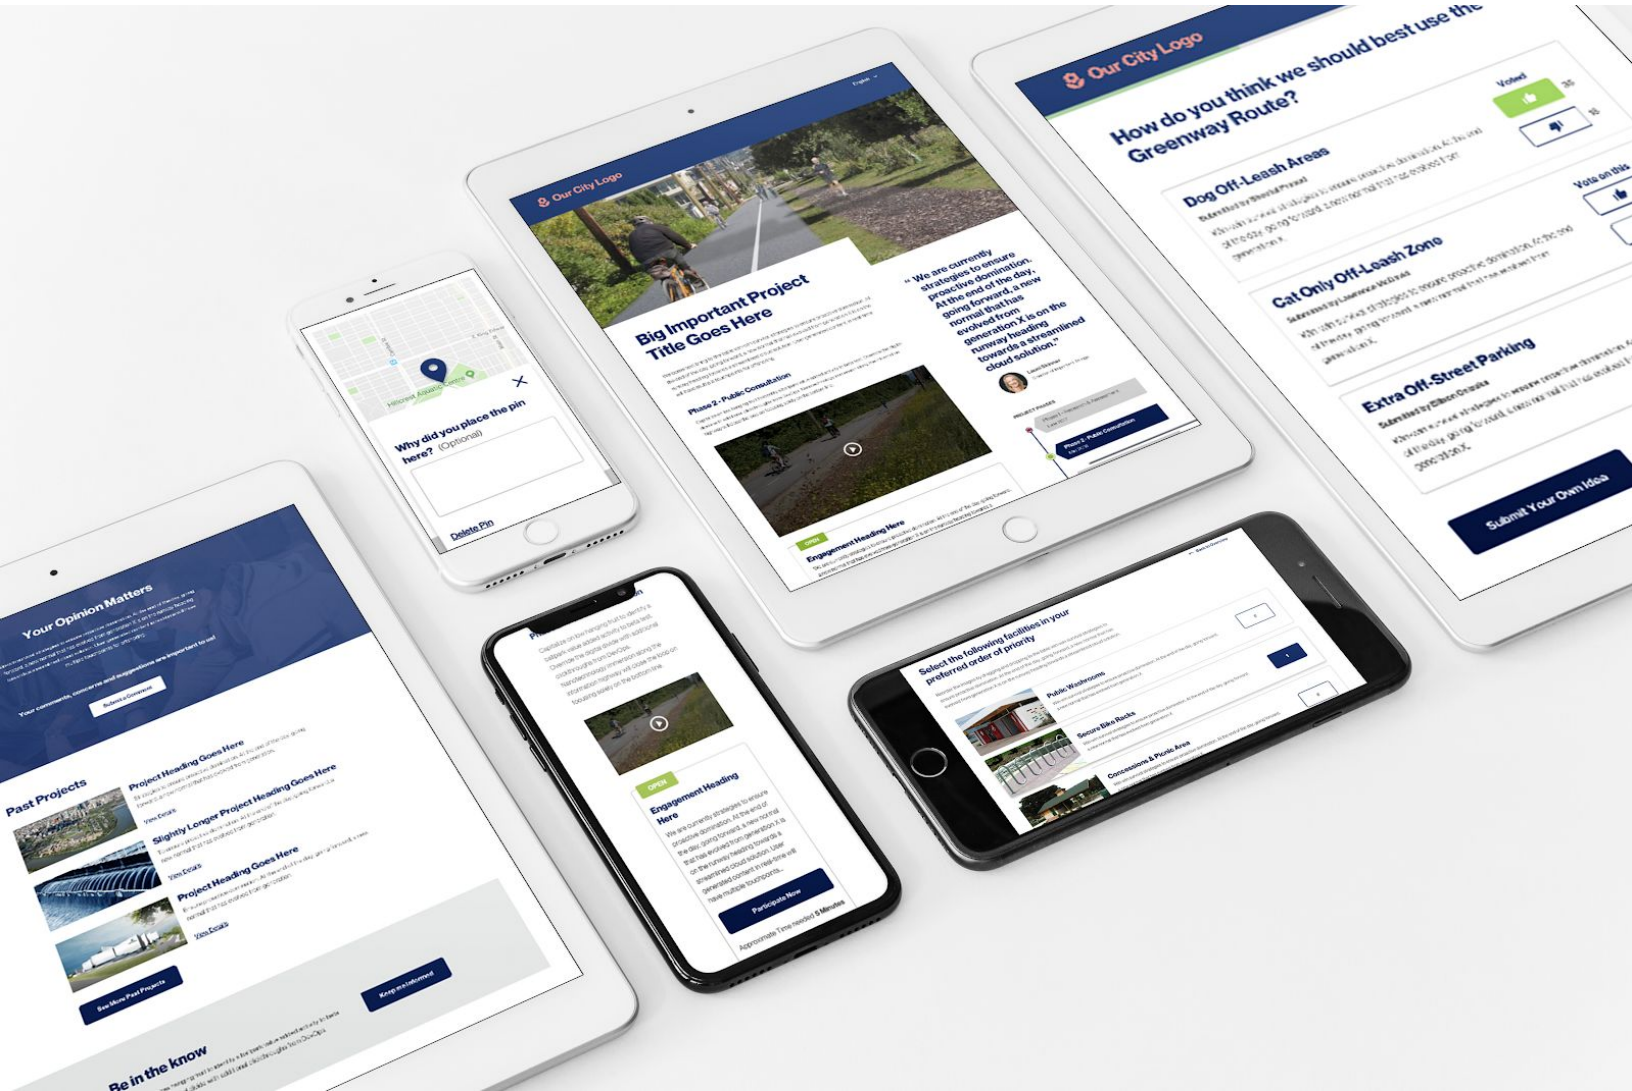

Keep your data local

With data centres in Canada, USA, and the UK (and more coming soon), your instance of the online engagement experience and all data collected stays resident in your home country

Take advantage of mobile moments

Capture the attention and opinion of your community in between the important moments of their day with a platform built to encourage mobile engagement from the ground up

Available in both Lite and Pro editions, Civil Space can be customized to suit communities from single engagements to unlimited usage.
